1953 FIELD TRAINING

Dedicated to the men of the 38th. Infantry Division, and to the men of those units which were its predecessors who, over long years of campaign and conflict in battle and in victory, have made the supreme sacrifice for God and country.

Although the 738th Ordnance Battalion was just activated on 17 November 1952, it has grown from one of the oldest units in the 38th Infantry Division. The 738th Ordnance Company was activated on 25 March 1947 and shortly thereafter a cadre was chosen and the 3658th Ordnance Medium Maintenance Company was brought into being on 22 March 1948 as parent unit for the State Maintenance shop. The present Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment cadre was also chosen from the old 738th Ordnance Maintenance Company.

Basically the 738th Ordnance Battalion performs supervision, inspection, maintenance, and supply on the ordnance equipment of the 38th Infantry Division. The Battalion Commander is also the Division Ordnance Officer and his staff consists of an Executive, Maintenance, and Supply Officer. In addition to the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, the Battalion consists of Company A (Forward) and Company B (Rear). A great percentage of the personnel of these two units are highly qualified for their ordnance duties being employed full time at the State Maintenance Shop.

The Forward Company functions primarily as an inspection-contact team endeavouring to keep first and second echelon within the individual units on a high level. The Rear Company operates a maintenance shop performing third echelon maintenance and other repairs not accomplished by the using units. This company also carries a basic load of ordnance parts necessary to supply the division.

The 738th Ordnance Battalion is proud of its high morale and highly specialized personnel. All of the units of the 738th Ordnance Battalion have been commended several times for performances ranging from emergency relief duty to operations accomplished at field training.

OUR DEFENSE SEAL

The seal of the American bald eagle was selected as an emblem of strength. The three crossed arrows held in the eagle's grasp are collectively symbolic of the three component parts of the National Military Establishment. The wreath of laurel below the eagle stands for honors received in combat while defending the peace, represented by the olive branch.

INDIANAPOLIS

GEORGE N. CRAIG
GOVERNOR

TO: The officers and men of the 38th Infantry Division

It is with deepest pride and sincere personal pleasure that I address this letter to the members of Indiana's own 38th Infantry Division as your Commander in Chief.

It has not been too long ago that I served as one of you. My National Guard service gives me an understanding and an appreciation of your problems and objectives that, otherwise, I might never have had.

Each and every one of you is proud of your unit. That is as it should be. However, I want every man in the Division also to recognize and cherish the position of the National Guard in our Country's defense picture. Without the National Guard, the United States could not economically support an organization capable of defending our country against any agressor. The citizen soldier -- in Indiana and in each of the other States -- is the real bulwark of our defense.

You are doing a great service to your State and to your Country, and I pledge to you my utmost cooperation and assistance. My own request of you is your fullest effort in making the 38th Infantry Division the finest Division in the United States.

Your National Guard

Your National Guard is an integral part and a first line component of the National Military Establishment.

As such it is responsible to the people of the country for the successful execution of the following mission:

"To provide a reserve component of the Army and Air Force of the United States, capable of immediate expansion to war strength, able to furnish units fit for service anywhere in the world, trained and equipped:

a. To defend critical areas of the United States against land, seaborne or airborne invasion;

b. To assist in covering the mobilization and concentration of the remainder of the reserve forces;

c. To participate by units in all types of operations, including the offensive, either in the United States or overseas."

THE HISTORY OF THE 38TH Infantry Division, Indiana National Guard, begins in 1810 and continues to this day and will continue beyond.

In the frontier days of 1810, with Indiana still a territory and a virgin wilderness, the Indiana Militia and the Indiana Legion were formed. The 151st Infantry Regiment of the 38th Division, as well as the 152nd Regiment, owe their origins to the 1st and 2nd Regiments of the Indiana Legion, organized in May, 1810.

These 1st and 2nd Regiments fought in the battle of Tippecanoe against the Indian leader Tecumseh; they went into action in frontier skirmishes against the Indians, and they marched with the Indiana Brigade in the Mexican War.

They shouldered arms in 1861 as the greatest conflict ever to shake America became the Civil War, and in 1898 they took up their weapons again in the Spanish-American War.

In 1916, units of these two regiments were on the Mexican Border, and in August, 1917, the 38th Infantry Division was born. Activated as a full division, it began its training at Camp Shelby, Miss., and there won the name of "Cyclone Division" after a tornado swept through the camp and destroyed many buildings.

In September, 1918, as World War I drew to a close, the division sailed for France, but never saw combat as a unit. Its men were used as replacements for other divisions. After return to the United States in 1919, the division was deactivated.

In the short period of world peace between 1918 and 1939, the units of the division were reactivated as National Guard units. The 151st and 152nd Regiments were reborn in 1921, and the 38th Division came back to life in 1923, with Maj. Gen. Robert H. Tyndall as its commanding general.

In the period following World War I, the division drew its men from three states – Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

The spread of World War II brought the division back into federal service in January, 1941. Again it went to Camp Shelby for training, and there became a triangular division, dropping the 150th Infantry Regiment, and a field artillery unit.

After training in the United States, in Hawaii and in New Guinea, the division entered combat December 7, 1944, on Leyte. There it fought the bloody battle of Zig-Zag Pass, and Maj. Gen. W. C. Chase, commanding general, gave to the division its second nickname, the "Avengers of Bataan."

In 217 consecutive days in combat, the division killed 26,732 Japanese, and captured more than 13,000. In September, 1945, the war in the Pacific ended, and in October the division was on its way home for deactivation.

The division was reactivated in early 1947, and divisional units steadily organized until 1949, when complete organization was achieved.

In 1948, 1949 and 1950, the division held its summer training at Camp Atterbury, Indiana, and in 1951 and 1952 at Camp Grayling, Mich. Its division commander is Maj. Gen. Jesse E. McIntosh, Tipton.

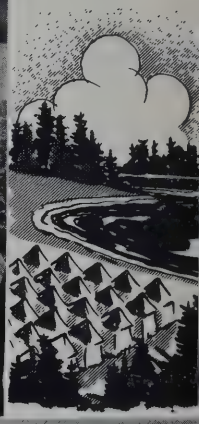
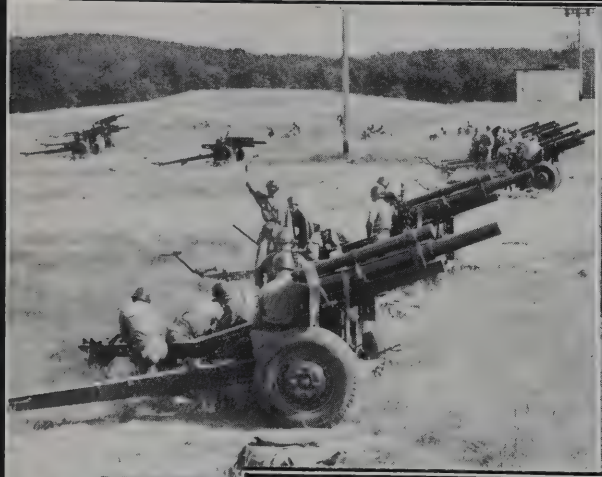
CAMP GRAYLING

One of the finest state military reservations in the nation, is the historic training ground of the Michigan National Guard. The original Hanson State Military Reservation, given to the state by Rasmus Hanson in 1911, contained 12,920 acres around the shores of Lake Margrethe. Today there are 127,640 acres within the boundaries of the reservation, including 31,340 acres still privately-owned. Michigan's Guardsmen first trained here in 1914. They were mobilized here for their service in World War I and trained here for their outstanding service in World War II.

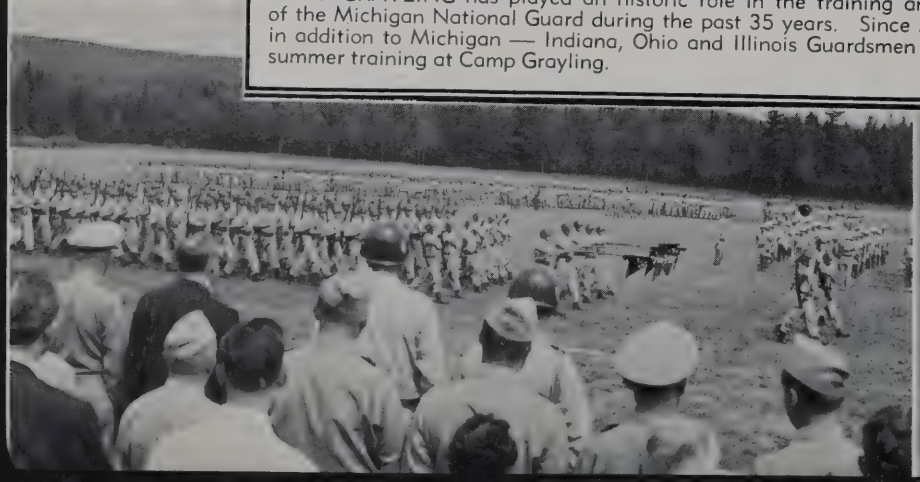
ANNUAL SUMMER CAMP. Your annual 15 days of summer field training has many advantages. It offers you invaluable military know-how under combat conditions — and includes pleasant outdoor recreational and sports facilities. Two full weeks in the field will contribute to your physical well-being.



THE NATIONAL GUARD is America's answer to obtaining national security at a reasonable cost without the militarism of a large professional peace time standing army.



CAMP GRAYLING has played an historic role in the training and growth of the Michigan National Guard during the past 35 years. Since July 1951 in addition to Michigan — Indiana, Ohio and Illinois Guardsmen have had summer training at Camp Grayling.



THE COMMANDING GENERAL, 38TH. INFANTRY DIVISION

MAJOR GENERAL JESSE E. McINTOSH

Began his military career April 26, 1917, as a Private in the 13th. Cavalry, and was overseas 14 months in WWI. He has been in the 38th. 151st INFANTRY REGIMENT

151ST HISTORY IN BRIEF

Since the year 1812 men have been fighting under the 151 Infantry Regiment banners. During the battle of Tippecanoe the phrase "Wide Awake! Wide Awake!" was used to keep tired soldiers awake and on their toes. This became the regimental motto.

The regiment organized as the 2d Regiment of Indiana Volunteers, Indiana Brigade fought in the Mexican and Civil Wars.

151st Infantry Regiment "Snap Shots"

Civil war engagements in which the regiment participated were Henry and Donelson, Shiloh, Manassas, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, Chattanooga, Wilderness, Atlanta, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, Shenandoah.

Following the Civil War this regiment was reorganized as the 2d Regiment, Indiana Veteran Legion. In 1892 it was reorganized as the 1st Regiment, Indiana Legion.

On 5 Mar 1895 the Indiana Legislature passed an act making the Indiana Legion the Indiana National Guard.

During the Spanish American War the regiment fought as the 159th Indiana Volunteer Infantry Regiment.

Again in the Mexican Border outbreak 1916 it saw Federal Service. Soon after relief from this duty troops marched away to World War I, this was on 17 Jul 1917 as the 151st Infanty Regiment. Late in 1918 the regiment returned to the United States and was mustered out of service on 8 Mar 1919 as part of the 38th Division.

The regiment was again reorganized and federally recognized on 30 Jun 1921.

More active federal service came on 17 Jan 41 and for the second time it trained for combat at Camp Shelby, Miss. In 1943-1945 the regiment served overseas in Hawaii, New Guinea, The Philippines and Japan. In 1944 the 151st Infantry landed on Leyte for their first combat of WWII. After this baptism of fire came Luzon, Bataan, Manila Bay, Corregidor, Caballo Island, Fort Drum, Carabao, Zambales, and Sierra Madres.

The regiment returned to the US and was deactivated 9 Nov 45.

On 29 July 47 the regiment was reorganized and federally recognized as an element of the 38th Infantry Division with headquarters at Indianapolis, Indiana.

Since WWII the regiment has attended five summer camps, at Camp Atterbury, Ind in 1948, 49 and 50 and Camp Grayling, Mich in 1951 and 52.

The unit colors boasts the Combat Infantry Regiment streamer and the World War II campaign or battle streamer.

The 38th Division Artillery was organized as the 63rd Field Artillery Brigade in October 1917, and consisted at that time of the 137th Field Artillery (Ind), 138th Field Artillery (Ky), light regiments, and the 139th Field Artillery (Ind) medium regiment.

It was first commanded by a Coast Artilleryman, Brigadier General F. Whitney, succeeded later by General Andy McIntyre.

A few horses were issued in December 1917 and during the following months other equipment was procured so that the Brigade began to shape up as an effectively trained organization. Immediately following this period of intensive training, about 70% of the enlisted personnel was sent overseas. By July 1918, new cannoneers and drivers had been trained, and in August the entire 38th Division was ordered overseas.

After a 14-day voyage by convoy and a series of camps in England, the Brigade arrived in Brittany and was billeted in northern France. On the trip a train wreck took a toll of 29 killed and 33 injured when the train of the 113th Ammunition Train crashed into the rear of the 139th Field Artillery train.

Early in November, the Brigade was stationed at Camp De Meucon, France, and started an intensive training program which was interrupted by the signing of the Armistice.

After the Armistice, the Brigade was returned to Brest and embarked for home, arriving in December 1918.

On 5 March the Brigade was reorganized, consisting of the 138th Field Artillery (Ky), and the 139th Field Artillery (Ind), both light regiments. The 150th Field Artillery (Ind), a medium regiment, was also reorganized but was not a part of the Brigade until 1927, although attached during each summer field training period.

Brigadier General Ellerbe W. Carter commanded the Brigade upon reorganization and remained in command through 1941, at which time he was succeeded by Brigadier General Vandiver.

The Division Artillery trained together as a Brigade each field training period since 1923; became truck-drawn on 1 January 1936 and was inducted into Federal Service 17 January 1941.

Division Artillery was reorganized into its present triangular arrangement in March 1942. The 138th and 150th each lost one battalion and the 139th was split to form the 139th and 163rd Battalions, making Division Artillery consist of 3 light and one medium battalion rather than the old arrangement of 3 regiments.

From the Louisiana-Texas maneuver area, Division Artillery, as a part of the 38th Infantry Division, proceeded to the amphibious training center at Camp Carrabelle, Florida, where they were given a 2-month intensive training period, ending in January 1943.

At the conclusion of this phase of training the Division was sent to Camp Livingston, Louisiana, where it was given intensive training for combat, lasting almost a year.

Division Artillery as a part of the 38th Division sailed from New Orleans in December 1943, and arrived on Oahu, Territory of Hawaii, 21 January 1944. During the six months spent in the Islands, the Artillery was employed in coastal defense and in addition was trained in jungle warfare and the technique of amphibious operations.

In July, 1944, Division Artillery embarked for New Guinea, to spend another six months preparing for the landings on Leyte and Luzon.

The Artillery distinguished itself in the actions at Zig Zag Pass, Bataan, Corregidor, Manila Bay and numerous small islands including Fort Drum, and the Wah Wah Dam. The Division became known as the Avengers of Bataan.

Following the end of active resistance the Artillery was returned to the States in 1945.

Upon reorganization of the 38th Infantry Division as an all Indiana National Guard Division, Colonel Norman E. Hart was given command of Division Artillery to be later succeeded by Brig. Gen. Carl O. DeBard, present commander of Division Artillery. Since reorganization Headquarters has been in Indianapolis.

Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 38th Division Artillery was granted federal recognition 18 June 1947. Three light battalions and one medium battalion was the initial organization with the 139th Field Artillery Battalion Hq. in Crawfordsville, 163rd with Hq. in Evansville, 524th Hq. in Bloomington and the 150th (Medium) Hq. in Kokomo. In Reb. 1949 the table of organization was changed, and the 138th AAA (AW) Battalion, with Hq. in Marion, was added.

38th Division Artillery has taken part in six summer Field Training periods since reorganization in 1947. The first three were held at Camp Atterbury and the last three at Camp Grayling, Michigan.

The training has progressed to the point where the 38th Division Artillery has become an efficient, and effective organization, ready for any emergency.

Organization of the 524th Field Artillery Battalion was begun with the recognition of Hq & Hq Battery at Bloomington on 28 July 1947 and completed with the recognition of Service Battery at Columbus on 20 January 1948. The Battalion has continually strived for perfection. The results of these efforts are reflected in the high ratings received in Armory and Field Training inspections and the awarding of the Eisenhower Trophy to Service Battery.
